NORWAY AND GERMANY MAY SOON BREAK

Widespread Speculation as to the Attitude and Fate of Sweden, If Relations Are Broken

(Special to The Herald)
London, Oct. 27.—The increasing possibilities of a break between Norway and Germany leads to widespread speculation as to the attitude and fate of Sweden. Ever since the outbreak of the war Sweden has been pro-German and at times it has looked as though Sweden was about to join the German Allies.

Sweden has a more powerful army and navy than Norway. On the other hand the ties of relationship between the Kings of Norway and Great Britain are such that England would be the first to rush to the aid of Norway. In the meantime Germany continues to raid Norway's shipping, more than ten Norwegian ships having been sunk during the past 48 hours. There is no indication on the part of Germany to reply to Norway's decree banning submarines from her waters.

GERMANS MEET WITH STERN RESISTANCE

Field Marshal Von Mackensen's Army However Advances 25 Miles.

(Special to The Herald)
The critical zones in the war operations are still Roumania and Verdun. The armies of the Germans which drove the Roumanians from their positions on the north and east have scored fresh progress although they are meeting with stern resistance. The army under Field Marshal Von Mackensen which invaded Dobruja, has advanced to Harzova, 25 miles north of Cernavoda at the bend of the Danube.

way towards Chimpulung on the edge of the Roumanian Plains, driving the Russo-Roumanian forces before their violent advances.

Fighting of a violent nature is in progress northeast of Verdun. The French attack on Fort Vaux has broken down under the heavy fire of German artillery but progress was scored by the French attackers west and south of the works. The Germans holding the fort are standing out strongly before the driving blows administered by the French artillery and infantry.

The counter attacks of the Germans in the Carpathians has met with the fiercest resistance at the hands of the Russo-Roumanian armies. The German attempt to separate the Russian from the Roumanian forces has met with only slight progress. Bad weather is hampering the operations in Macedonia.

Some women from the shop of Cass and Daly, Salem, are employed temporarily on special work in the local shop of that firm.

The board of registrars of voters are in session today and this evening.

LOSS OF LIFE GREATER THAN FIRST REPORTED

Sister Benoit, a Real Heroine, Saves Forty-Five Lives in Hospital Fire.

(Special to The Herald)
Parnham, Quebec, Oct. 27.—It is now believed that between 40 and 50 persons lost their lives in the burning of St. Elizabeth's hospital yesterday. Between 20 and 30 persons, mostly aged inmates of the hospital were crushed by the falling timbers. The heroine of the occasion was Sister Benoit, one of the nuns in charge of the hospital. She saved forty-five lives at the risk of her own. While the flames raged about her she stood at one of the windows, passing children out to the firemen. William Sisson, a 14-year-old boy saved little children by carrying them on his back. Incendiaries are now supposed to have caused the fire as three more fires have broken out. The loss is placed at $125,000.

FIGHTING ON OUTSKIRTS OF CHIHUAHUA

Between Government and Villista Forces Reported by Government Agent.

(Special to The Herald)
San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 27.—Fighting has been resumed on the outskirts of Chihuahua City by the defacto government and Villista forces, the latter supplied by ammunition obtained by the Palomares victory. This information came in dispatches from government agents to General Foxton through General Bell at El Paso.

Hats off to the weather man. Some poles in the city need the attention of the Inspector of wires and poles.

The county commissioners met here today.

FRENCH FORCES MAKE GAINS IN THEIR DRIVE

With the Intention of Encircling the Germans at Fort Vaux--Heavy Cannonading on Both Sides

(Special to The Herald)
Paris, Oct. 27.—The French drive against Fort Vaux, northeast of Verdun has made further progress. The French lines both south and west were advanced during the fighting last night. It was announced by the war office. While the French infantry pressed forward in their encircling movement around the Germans at Fort Vaux, the German guns were actively engaged in shelling the fortifications in the Douaumont-Chanels wood. It was a drum fire of the heaviest type, but no less violent was the cannonading of the French guns. As the French guns moved forward in their assault, the French batteries poured out a ceaseless fire. The bombardment wrecked the trenches and scattered the reservists. It has become known that Douaumont was set on fire by a German shell, and it was still burning when the French stormed it. The situation on the Somme remains unchanged.

SEA FIGHT IN THE ENGLISH CHANNEL

Two German Destroyers Sunk and English Also Lose Two Destroyers and a Transport Ship

(Special to The Herald)
London, Oct. 27.—The first open sea fight since the Jutland battle was fought in the English Channel last night between the English and German mosquito fleet, when ten German destroyers attempted to play havoc with the British cross-sea service and engaged British destroyers. A spectacular running battle resulted. In the report by the Admiralty today it is stated that the Germans lost two destroyers. The British destroyer Flirt is missing and only nine of her men were saved. The destroyer Nubian, was disabled and later sunk, while in tow. The transport Queen, with no troops aboard, was sunk, but her crew was saved. The raid was designed principally to hinder the British from transporting troops across to France. The channel was the scene of a violent storm at the time and a high sea prevailed. The destroyer Nubian, commander Montague Barnard, was disabled and listing heavily when taken in tow by a rescue ship. So terrific was the gale that the tow line had to be cut. The fate of the Nubian's crew is unknown.

ENGINEERS WORKING UNDER SHELL FIRE

In Attempt to Repair the 12-Mile Bridge Across the Danube.

(Special to The Herald)
Berlin, Oct. 27.—Engineers in the army of Field Marshal Von Mackensen in the Dobruja operations are engaged in repairing the 12-mile bridge across the Danube at Cernavoda, which was blown up by the retreating Roumanians when they left the city before its occupation by the Austro-German forces. Advice received from Sofia state that the engineers moved with the advancing army as it was believed that the Roumanians would destroy the bridge in case of their being forced to retreat. Roumanian artillery placed on the west bank of the Danube, is shelling the engineers as the work of restoration but in turn are being shelled by the Germans. The Germans are bringing up heavy guns and placing them in positions to cover the work of the engineers. The cavalry is still following the retreating Russo-Roumanian forces in the Dobruja region.

GERMANS CAPTURE AN ADVANCED RUSSIAN POSITION

(Special to The Herald)
Berlin, via wireless to Sayville, N.

Y., Oct. 27.—The capture of an advanced Russian position south of Tsharo, in Roumania, was announced by the German war office this afternoon. One officer and 80 men were captured. All Russian attacks launched during the past 24 hours were beaten off, the statement said.

FRENCH ATTACKS BEATEN OFF

Fierce Artillery Duel Raging East of the Meuse River.

Berlin, via wireless to Sayville, N. Y., Oct. 27.—The violent French attacks against Fort Douaumont at noon today were beaten off, the war office announced this afternoon. A fierce artillery duel east of the Meuse, between Pepper Ridge and Woerve, was in progress, the statement added. On the Somme only slight action was taking place and the French and British attacks were being drowned in the German curtain of fire.

STATE HEALTH BOARD ACTIVE

Grapefruit Sold in New Hampshire Put to Laboratory Tests

Concord, Oct. 27.—That the State Board of Health is doing all in its power to protect the people of the state from eating things which are unfit for the human anatomy is well shown by the fact that the laboratory, which is in charge of State Chemist Charles D. Howard and Waldo Adams are now testing the grape fruits that are being sold about the state.

The tests began in Concord and of the many specimens that were collected and submitted, very few came up to the standard required by the government which is urging the tests. Some of the specimens in fact, fell far below what is considered by the government's fruit experts as a fair standard.

Principal among the tests made of the grapefruit is that for acid, the ratio being set as a standard as one part of acid to seven parts of sugar. Below this the fruit is considered non-edible. Dealers in this city have been notified that the strictest care will be taken of this fruit, as it appears on the market and they have been warned to notify their jobbers to send only ripe fruit here. If the tests fall short in other parts of the state, no doubt the same measure will be taken.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

SAGE, TEA AND SULPHUR TURNS GRAY, FADED HAIR DARK AND GLOSSY

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray. Years ago the only way to get this lustre was to make it at home, which is messy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You will get a large bottle of this old time remedy improved by the addition of other ingredients for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this preparation now, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally, and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger. Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound is a delightful toilet requisite. It is not intended for the cure, mitigation or prevention of disease.

BOB OTT COMPANY.

Back again to dear old Portsmouth. Again will Bob Ott offer himself to the diamond-minded man, to the girl with the lights, to the woman with the blues, to the man with the grouch, and to the theatre-loving public. Bob is worth seeing three times. The success scored by Bob recalls the memorable hits already made by this master portrait of dialect characters, and also revives recollection of the peculiar manner in which he first became identified with such roles. It was years ago, Bob worked in a now production entitled "Burning Shame." It was a howling melodrama. The manager was a hat manufacturer—when business was bad he paid the actors off in hats. Bob received 12 cheese-cakes a week. It was some troupe. Bob played the part of Carlo Rover, a party villain. He didn't have much of a part. After the first act, when a murder had been committed, Bob was obliged to say, "I did." Here is a sample of the play. A murder had been committed, the hero enters, looks at the body and shouts, "Who killed this man?" And Bob was to reply, "I did." The manager told Bob to study his part. Bob laughed; "Why it's very simple he replied; I know my part now—I did." "Don't be too sure," the manager replied. All day long Bob kept repeating "I did." "I did." "I did." Several of the other actors kept reproaching him. Bob continued to shout

"I did." Finally the night of the play arrived. Bob kept whispering to himself, "I did." At eight o'clock the play started off, everything was going along scene, just as the man was killed, the line they came to the big murder scene entered and exclaimed, "Who killed this man?" Bob shouted, "Did I?" Bob promised his father that he would never become an actor. After his father saw him play in "A Burning Shame," he grabbed Bob by the hand and said, "My boy, I'm glad you kept your word." After leaving "A Burning Shame" Bob decided to go into vaudeville, and right away quick he became a protean artist—making one hundred changes in 20 minutes. He became known as "the man with a hundred faces." One day he called to see Joseph Hart, to try and book a week at his theatre. When he entered the office, Hart was busy; finally he looked up and said, "Who are you, and what do you want?" Bob replied, "I'm the man with a hundred faces." Hart replied, "Why didn't you pick out a good one for yourself?" That was years ago. Today Bob is playing in his own company, and you all know him. This year he will present three brand new shows, namely: "Lead Me to It," "Boys and Girls," "Zam Zam." And don't forget, the best singing and dancing chorus in the world. Seats now on sale. Prices, 10c, 20c, 30c. Opening bill Monday and Tuesday, "Lead Me to It."

NEW HORSES PROVIDED FOR FIRE DEPARTMENT

City Council Allows $1,000 for Purchase of Four New Horses—Public Works Board Given $1,776. Further Appropriation

After fighting for nearly two hours last evening, Councilman Hett of Ward 1, chairman of the committee on fire department, was finally successful in having the city set aside the money necessary for the purchase of four new horses for the fire department, winning a fight which this committee has been waging for more than two years. Earlier in the evening the Council had thrown down a resolution nearly the counterpart of the one passed just before adjournment, the one difference being in the source from which the funds were to be secured. The resolution passed transfers the sum of $1,000 from the general funds of the city to the committee on fire department and allows the committee to sell the four horses, which have been condemned, using the money secured from such sale in addition to the $1,000 appropriated. Any surplus money is to be returned to the city.

Another important piece of business transacted was the passing of a bond issue to its first reading for $5000, for the erection of a stand pipe near the Newington line for additional pressure of the water of the Peverly Hill Brook. The bill passed its first reading without opposition.

The meeting opened at 8.00 o'clock with Councilmen Borthwick, Matthews, Haynes, Hett, Paterson, Sullivan and Smart, present. The Mayor presented a petition signing the Board of Public Works for their exceeding of their appropriation; charging them with having expended a total of $1,229.45 above the sum given them by the appropriation bill in January. John H. Sugden, clerk of the Board, and Mr. White, were present at the meeting and presented their side of the question, convincing the council that the additional money they were asking were actually needed. They succeeded in showing the council that although they had overdrawn the accounts in many departments they were still $5000 below the sum expected by the board in 1915 and were at present $6500 below the figure they submitted to the finance committee on Jan. 1, when the appropriation bill was drawn up. The council had cut their appropriation $9000 below the figure the board asserted was necessary in order to conduct their business for the year. The mayor's communication follows:—

Portsmouth, N. H., Oct. 26, 1916
Gentlemen of the Council:—

I wish to call your attention to the following facts:—

In our board of public works it seems that they have entirely ignored their oath of office and shown little regard for the welfare of our citizens in the expenditure of their money, a great many of their appropriations for the present year being overdrawn, a direct violation of our city ordinance.

I, as chief executive of this city, cannot and will not tolerate such proceedings by the board of public works or any other department, and if necessary shall take legal proceedings to protect the people's rights and welfare. The board of public works have overdrawn their appropriations in the following amounts:

Highway Department—
Asphalt	$117.79
Tools	131.00
Fuel, light, water	37.65
Moth work	6.87
Roads	168.86
Grading roads	155.96
Noble Island and Middle St.	35.00
Water Department—
Expense	261.85
Operation and electric power	213.41
Stable expense	33.98
Incidentals	63.66

Total $1,229.45
You can very easily see, gentlemen, that if each and every department of Miller and Lincoln avenue, was granted on motion of Councilman Borthwick.

The city had overdrawn their appropriations as this department has, we would have created a floating debt of over $10,000. How many years do you suppose such governments would take to put us in a receiver's hands? I believe some action should be taken by this body.

(Signed) SAMUEL T. LADD, Mayor.

Mr. White, speaking for the board, said that the salaries account in the street department was all right and that they still had $1.14 in the expenses account but needed $50 more. For the street payroll Mr. White said that they had $452.35, a sum sufficient to carry on the work to the end of the month and unless they were given an additional $1000 in this department the collection of ashes would have to be stopped, together with all work on the streets, including sweeping and cleaning and the plowing of the sidewalks in the winter, provided any snow fell before the first of January. On the matter of oil Mr. White said that the price for oil had increased and they needed $100 addition to carry on the work. Other sums needed were explained as follows:

$450 for ashes removal; $100 for materials and supplies; which account was already overdrawn by $60.77; $500 for roads; $100 for auto repairs, which account was already $54.00 overdrawn; $300 for tools; and a transfer of funds in the water department. He said that they would need no additional appropriation in the water department but the accounts needed adjustment, transferring sums of money from one division of the work to others.

He showed that the addition of $2500, which they asked, together with the transfers in the several divisions, would enable them to carry on the work of the city until the end of the year. This $2500, he asserted, would still keep the department of Public Works $2500 below the amount spent last year.

On the matter of Middle street and Noble Island they had been given $1200 for the work and had expended $1234.21, $34.21 more than the appropriation. On motion of Councilman Matthews the council voted to make the necessary transfers and to give the board the additional $2500 asked for the money to come from general funds not otherwise appropriated. The council passed the resolution without opposition, although the discussion before the vote lasted nearly an hour.

A petition from the Portsmouth City Band asking the use of the upper hall in the old court house on Court street for rehearsals, the band to pay for the light and heat, was referred to the committee on lands and buildings.

A petition signed by Miss Jesse S. McDaniels, principal of the Haven School, asking the use of the South Ward Room for meetings of a boy's club at the Haven School, was referred to the committee on public buildings and places.

A petition signed by Fred C. Tucker and others, asking for the installation of a light on Whirl street between Councilman Smart introduced a resolution transferring $1000 from the contingent fund to the committee on fire department, allowing the committee to sell the four condemned fire horses, using this money in addition to the money appropriated. Councilman Smart moved the resolution pass.

The bill was opposed by Councilman Matthews who stated that the city was in no financial condition to spend $1000 for fire horses at this time and asked if the present horses would not do until the end of the year. Councilman Hett stated that this postponement of the bill had been going on for three years; that two of the horses had already been condemned by State Agent Howard O. Nelson and that one of the other pair was so lame that this pair would be condemned in a short time, and that the city needed new horses for protection.

Councilman Matthews offered an amendment to the resolution substituting the words "4500" in place of "1000" and the amendment was passed. Councilman Borthwick offered an amendment, striking out the word "four" in reference to selling and buying horses. The amendment was lost. The resolution, as amended, allowing $400 for the purchase of four horses was placed before the meeting and was killed.

A communication from the Board of Health was received, stating that department was likely to need more money as they were in danger of exceeding their appropriation.

This salary pay roll, totaling $2946.62, was accepted and the mayor authorized to draw a warrant for the amount as it became due, on motion of Councilman Matthews. Bills amounting to $2739.45, approved by the auditor, were ordered paid on motion of Councilman Borthwick.

Councilman Smart presented a resolution transferring $700 from the contingent fund to a special fund for the payment of attorneys in defending the city in their several suits. The resolution was passed.

Councilman Smart offered a resolution giving authority to the committee on public buildings to ask for bids and to award them to the lowest bidders, for the painting of the cell robin of the police station. The resolution passed.

Councilman Smart offered a resolution transferring from funds available the sum of $3600.87 to pay the Marathon claim which suit was found against the city by the Superior Court. The resolution passed.

Councilman Hett presented a resolution for the transfer of $1000 from general funds to the committee on fire department for the purchase of four fire horses, and giving the committee authority to sell four horses now in the department and to use this sum if necessary, all unexpended money from the sale and the appropriation to be returned to the city. The resolution passed.

Councilman Matthews offered a resolution to float a bond issue of $5000 in five bonds, bearing interest at not

SAVE YOUR HAIR! 25 CENT BOTTLE STOPS DANDRUFF

Every bit of dandruff disappears and hair stops coming out.

Try this! Your hair appears glossy, abundant, wavy and beautiful.

This, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scourge. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—no—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25-cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance, an incomparable gloss and softness; but what will please you most will be after just a few week's use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp. Danderine is to the hair what fresh showers of rain and sunshine are to vegetation. It goes right to the roots, invigorates and strengthens them. Its exhilarating and life-producing properties cause the hair to grow long, strong and beautiful.

more than 4 per cent, on bond being due June 1, 1918 and one due each succeeding year for four years, the money to be used in the erection of a stand pipe at the Newington line for additional pressure on the Peverly Hill water system. He explained that the erection of this stand pipe would allow a saving of $3000 a year in pumping from the Haven Springs station. The resolution passed its first reading on motion of Councilman Matthews. On motion of Councilman Smart it was voted at adjournment to adjourn to November 23. On motion of Councilman Sullivan the meeting adjourned.

TO FORM CAMP IN PORTSMOUTH OF SONS OF VETS

PRELIMINARY MEETING HELD
LAST EVENING IN WAR VETERAN'S HALL APPOINTED TEMPORARY OFFICERS.

At a largely attended meeting in G. A. R. Hall last evening a start was made toward the organization of a Camp of Sons of Veterans in Portsmouth. The meeting was opened by M. H. Bell, commander of Storer Post No. 1, G. A. R., at whose invitation the meeting had been called.

The meeting elected temporary officers, naming Judge Adams as temporary president; Percy A. Moulton, temporary secretary; treasurer; and Captain L. H. Washburn, George M. Walker and Arthur A. Clark as three members of the nominating committee. The next meeting will be held in G. A. R. Hall Friday evening, Nov. 10, and the list of those in the city eligible for membership will be notified and invited to attend when it is probable that the permanent association will be organized. A representative of the state department of the Sons of Veterans will be present at the meeting and speak on the object of the order.

APPEARANCE.

You mustn't judge a person by the clothes that he may wear. You might have done so years ago, but now it isn't fair. A man may be responsible and serious of mind; Yet wear a little overcoat that's belted in behind; He may be all profound of thought, and yet display with joy A hat that looks as if intended for his youngest boy. That the apparel oft proclaims the man has been believed. But now the statement with a share of doubt must be received. You mustn't trust appearance. At present you will see A general effort to appear like twenty-two or three. And those who put on glasses and look solemn as a rule, Are principally youngsters who are not yet out of school. As has been wisely said this world is but a fleeting show; We are optical illusions as upon parade we go. And perhaps it's just as well for us to do the best we can, And help improve the scenery upon the modern plan.

A Wholesome Check Applied.

Leland Stanford University in California is drawing the line, not on wealth, but on the practice of squandering wealth while ostensibly pursuing its courses of study and allowing the pursuit of pleasure to interfere with the hard work that must be done by every student, rich or poor, who is to get from the institution the benefit he should receive from a course of study there.

The stand taken by President Wilbur makes it apparent that wealth and the habits it engenders are interfering with the work of the university. He has decreed that hereafter the students shall not have automobiles or indulge too freely in dancing and other pleasures which take their time and attention from the work they should be doing. He has consequently sent a circular letter to parents in which he says that students with too much money, and disposed to spend their time in pleasure seeking, are not desired in the institution. He advises fathers and mothers not to make too liberal allowances to their sons and daughters while the latter are pursuing their studies, and points to the fact that those students who have to struggle for an education are apt to make the best records, not only while in college, but after graduation.

And this is a well known fact. Abundant means, especially in the hands of the young, do not encourage the habit of hard work, but have quite the contrary effect. It is the student who goes to college with a serious purpose that attends to business and achieves results, while the money spenders manage to wriggle through and receive their diplomas, which in some cases constitute about the only evidence of the fact that they have had the advantage of a college course.

Education is something that cannot be bought by the yard or the pound. It is something that must be worked for, and where wealth interferes with the work of the student it is a hindrance rather than the help that it naturally should be. The president of Leland Stanford has evidently been considering this subject for some time, and at last he has drawn the line. He announces that students whose chief aim is to spend money and have a good time are not wanted there, and advises parents who believe in that sort of a college course to send their sons and daughters elsewhere. This action is a striking commentary on the developments of the times, and there is reason to believe that the results will be wholesome.

It has long been claimed that anything can be proved by the Bible, and now they are proving by it that the automobile was foreseen many centuries ago. The evidence is found in Nahum 2:4. "The chariots shall rage in the streets, they shall jostle one against another in the broadways; they shall seem like torches; they shall run like the lightnings." It has taken a long time to fulfill this prophecy, but no one will deny that the job has been well done.

Carranza is not the only one who wants the troops withdrawn. The farmers in the vicinity of San Antonio, Tex., are in a similar mood, and as a result a lot of soldiers have been placed under arrest for "exploring" their acres. The trespassers are to be tried by court-martial, but it is not expected there will be any shootings.

What is pronounced the best counterfeit $10 bill that has made its appearance in 25 years is in circulation in the Middle West, where the campaign is especially warm. Can it be that it was brought out for campaign purposes, or is it merely another evidence of the increasing "efficiency" of the American people?

In some places out on the Pacific slope earthquakes have been shaking things up of late. No heavy damage has resulted, but these things are nerve-racking, and they substantially offset some of the advantages of the "glorious climate."

Big drives are now in progress on all the political fronts and the biggest guns are in use. Fortunately, we all know when this struggle will end, and there will be a general sense of relief when the end comes.

A number of summer hotels and cottages on the Atlantic coast have lately been burned. If fires there must be it will have to be admitted that these were timely.

The world's wheat crop is reported below the average, but this isn't so bad as it might be. The world's population is being slowly reduced.

EDITORIAL COMMENT

Jefferson a Protectionist
(From the Philadelphia Public Ledger-Rep.)

We habitually think of Alexander Hamilton as a man who believed in a strong government to the extent of a high protective tariff.

Just as habitually we think of Thomas Jefferson, the greatest Democrat of all time, as a man who believed that farming was sufficient to make America great and her people prosperous.

And yet Howard B. French, who is never happy unless finding out something new, has come into possession of a letter written, by Jefferson one hundred and eight years ago advocating a protective tariff on chemicals.

President Jefferson's letter was written to a Philadelphia manufacturer of chemicals, and his argument in favor of protection sounds pretty much as any one of hundreds that we hear now adays.

Mr. Hughes to First Voters
(From the Boston Transcript)

Mr. Hughes addressed Young America last night from the standpoint of young Americans in the home of his own young Americanism. Forty-two years ago this month he went to Brooklyn as a boy. There he became a member of the party of Lincoln. There he cast his first vote for the creed and the candidates of that party. Thither he returned last night as the candidate of that party for President. To confess anew his early faith and voice among those American ideals which young Americans cherish and which he champions. It was an environment of inspiration, and his speech was shot through with his own splendid spirit of Americanism undimmed and Americanism unafraid. The speech will be found in full on another page, and it will repay the careful reading of every first voter who wishes to make his vote count on election day toward the conservation of the ideals under which the nation grew to greatness.

Mr. Hughes spoke before the first voters of Brooklyn, but he spoke to the first voters of the nation. They constitute that class of the electorate which holds the balance of power in every presidential campaign. The first voters who take part in every presidential election are in number sufficient to swing the election. It will not be otherwise this year. Into their hands, more than into the hands of any other element of the electorate, is placed the power to say whether the nation shall go forward and what shall be its line of advance. Whether the character of the nation and the course of its government for the next four years shall follow the lines of the character and course of Mr. Wilson and his administration as they are revealed by the record, or whether they shall be shaped by Mr. Hughes, is a question the first voters of Boston, of Massachusetts, of the nation, must answer on Nov. 7 next. There will be thousands of first voters on the streets and in the Arena tonight to see and hear Mr. Hughes. His character with them will count much. They remember that he always says what he means and means what he says. They remember that he is not "too proud to fight." They remember that he makes his appeal, not to prejudice, but to principle. They remember that, mindful as he is of the material issues in this campaign, he puts the moral issue first. They remember that "honor first," and not "safety first," is the demand of Mr. Hughes for America. They will not leave their memories at home on election day, nor their courage, nor their ideals, nor their common sense.

Ambidexterity As a Rule
(From the Chicago Tribune)

Years ago the novelist Charles Reade was ridiculed for advocating ambidexterity, but the present war has given great pertinence to his idea of educating the human race to an equal use of both hands. European scientists have recently discussed it in considering one of the greatest problems which will confront the various nations when peace comes—that of finding suitable occupation for millions of maimed men.

Surgeons and educators have begun to point out ways by which men who have lost one or the other hand can resume their old trades or adopt new ones. It has been pointed out that the study of the symmetry of mind and body is the best method of attaining the desired results and scientists are pursuing this to find the ultimate solution of the problem.

There are serious difficulties in the way. Chief among these is the old

CURRENT OPINION

The year 1916 is noteworthy in the education and the vocational world for several announcements relative to secretarial training and especially relative to secretarial training for women. From a brief glance over the secretarial field it is apparent that the work demands, in order that the worker may secure the best results for her employer and herself, a preparation of considerable breadth and at the same time of definite vocational aim.

In the secretarial program of a vocational college not only stenography and typewriting, bookkeeping and office methods demand recognition, but also the principles of accounting, the organization of business, the geographic background of industry, trade and commerce, physical and chemical science, the English language and literature, modern languages, history, sociology and economics, many of them requiring subdivision into more or less specialized courses.

Over-specialization of the curriculum as a whole would serve neither the future employer nor the future employee. It is the duty of the vocational college to remember that the great vocation is life and that the ultimate employer is society.

That duty observed so far as possible, the function of vocational training in the narrower sense can be more effectively performed.—By Raymond G. Fuller, Russell Sage College of Practical Arts.

prejudice against the equal use of the hands which has resulted in making the human race practically one-handed so far as dexterity is concerned. The location of the heart and great arteries has led to a development of the right side of the body, including that arm and hand, for the protection of the other. A writer on this subject says that it has been demonstrated that left-handed soldiers who have lost their right hands are found to be more easily fired than right-handed men and that they are less accurate and able to do less work. A right-handed man learns more quickly to use his left than a left-handed man to use his right.

A strange obstacle has arisen in the efforts to teach men to learn left-hand writing. Many write from right to left and their product must be read by use of a mirror. Means have been found to correct this, however. It has been found that soldiers learn to write with the left hand in about a month. When it comes to manual labor and the arts men deprived of their right hands learn to use their lefts dexterously in less time than they do in writing, and many have demonstrated that they can resume their old crafts in a comparatively short time, although in the more skillful trades they cannot develop the same capacity. The war among its other lessons has taught the world that ambidexterity should be a rule in the future.

named is hardly less picturesque, though unfortunately less well known. The Michigan Historical Commission, was appointed in 1914 as a state department of history, with authority to take charge of all archives, state or local, over thirty years old. The commission has hopes of being some day suitably housed in a building of its own. Illinois and Wisconsin are leading in the work of collating state history, while all these states take an official pride in their own past. In time each of the groups will doubtless have its historical library, with volumes covering each phase of its development. In the meantime, the Harvard Commission on Western History is gathering a collection for the Widener library, collecting the ballads of the north woods and the folk-song material in which northern Michigan is rich.

Walk Home.
(From the Pittsburgh Gazette-Times)

There is a growing number of health enthusiasts, office men mostly, who walk home every evening. The walkers find a generous reward in stimulated circulation, clear minds, sound sleep. Distances in the city are not as great as they seem. If you need tuning up for the winter, try getting home under your own power. October is the best month of the year for a road test.

Soup Houses or Protection
(From the Worcester Telegram-Rep.)

A little less than two years ago there were soup houses in Gary, Ind., says Mr. Hughes. "What was the trouble? There had been a certain theory put into application in an act (the Democratic tariff bill) passed by Congress. It was a theory which paid scant attention to the demands of American labor. It won't do. It is not an American theory. I stand here for the Republican doctrine of protection to American industry." Gary is one of the new cities of the world built upon steel, and it had all the great American characteristics in it. But it had to have soup houses under the Democratic tariff.

GREAT AUDIENCE IN HUB CHEERS HUGHES TO ECHO

Boston's Arena Scene of Much Enthusiasm as Nominee Speaks.

Boston, Oct. 27.—Charles E. Hughes last night told an audience which filled Boston's big Arena that he proposed to be an American president if elected, unswayed by any suggestion of foreign influence.

"And I propose," he added, "that if I am elected we shall have the ablest cabinet that this country can supply."

Mr. Hughes also declared that he would maintain American rights and that he had "absolutely no patience whatever with the idea that an American citizen following his lawful pursuits in any part of the world should be left unprotected by the country from which he came."

"I am amazed," Mr. Hughes said, "that it is suggested that a proper attitude is that our policy of protection should not be maintained because it threatens our peace."

It is possible that any such action should obtain in the shadow of Bunker Hill? he asked.

The audience rose to its feet and waving thousands of American flags, shouted in answer "No."

Mr. Hughes had prepared his speech in advance, and while he adhered to it in substance, he made radical changes of its phraseology in delivery. He reached this city after two addresses in Hartford and Providence untired and apparently in excellent spirits. The big audience gave him a five minute cheer when he entered the hall and time after time interrupted with with applause and cheers during the delivery of his speech.

Hecklers sought to question him on various topics and one man who persisted, finally made himself heard, amid great confusion. In doing so the heckler had the aid of the nominee, who sought to quiet the crowd and urged that the petitioner be allowed to proceed.

"What specific policy will you take in Mexico?" the heckler shouted. "What specific policy will you take in Europe? What are you going to do with the eight-hour bill? What?"

The rest of the questioning was lost in a series of hoots and cat calls.

"I do not know," Mr. Hughes replied just what sort of mass we will find in Mexico next March but there are certain principles we shall be governed by. First, we will not meddle with affairs that do not concern us. Second, when we say we shall respect the rights of small nations, we will respect them in reality. And third, it shall be understood in Mexico, in Latin-America and elsewhere that American rights with respect to lives and property shall be protected."

The audience applauded and cheered. The heckler sat down and there were no more attempts to question the speaker.

Mr. Hughes' declaration of his intention to be an "American President" if elected, was interrupted by cheers and applause at the conclusion of every sentence.

And I Expect to Be

"If I am elected, as I expect to be," he began again, "we shall have an American administration with exclusively American policies, devoted to American interests, for a dominant Americanism, to the end that we may, as a great united people, with a confidence but loyal population, press forward to the goal that every true American desires."

After the cheering had ended Mr. Hughes declared that first of all he would "start right."

"I regard the President as the business manager of the affairs of the U. S.," he said, "responsibility to all the people for the wisest, most careful, most economical, most competent administration of the public business; an executive of vast authority; to the end that there may be efficiency in every department. I have no patience with the idea that we should make the high duty of administration bend to mere politics or partisan expediency."

"We are living at a time when it is necessary for the United States to give itself that it might take itself among the proper nations of the world, under the conditions which will ensue at the end of the war. It cannot be done, unless we realize the vast importance of the public business, and if I am elected, I propose that we shall have the ablest cabinet that this country can supply."

The police are now working on a newly discovered clue in the murder mystery.

REAL ESTATE CONVEYANCES

Following are the conveyances of real estate in the county of Rockingham recently recorded in the Registry of Deeds:

Man Claiming Portsmouth as His Home Leaves Creditors Behind.

A dispatch from Tilton, N. H., dated October 26 says:

A man given his name as John Emery and his home as Portsmouth, N. H., was married to a young lady named Dufresne, who gave her address as Dover, October 3, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Arthur M. Dunstan, pastor of the Trinity Episcopal church, at his home on Chestnut street. They wished to keep their marriage secret which they succeeded in doing until now. He has been staying at a local boarding house and his wife elsewhere. Mr. Emery has been engaged picking brown-tail moths on the Moses Emery estate and has been assisted by several local parties who are endeavoring to locate Mr. Emery, who they claim has not repaid for their work. Mr. and Mrs. Emery left this morning on the 4:19 Montreal and Boston express, purchasing tickets for Boston. Nearly an hour before the train reached Boston the police of that city were notified to apprehend Mr. Emery as he is wanted in Tilton.

No such man is found in the city directory or is he known by the police.

POISON TABLETS
TAKEN BY GIRLWest Center Harbor Miss Disliked School—Condition Is Critical.

Meredith, Oct. 27.—Jessie Sturtevant, aged about 16, daughter of one of the best known residents of West Center Harbor, some four miles from Meredith lies at the point of death from the effects of a dose of poison, corrosive sublimate, which she took.

Miss Sturtevant is a student of the High School at Ashland. She demurred against going to Ashland, preferring to remain at home, and had been dependent ever since school commenced last month. On Tuesday of this week she returned home declaring that she did not want to go to school there. Her parents argued with her on the subject, although not in a harsh manner. She took the matter quite seriously and yesterday afternoon, securing some of the tablets, which were kept in the house, swallowed a sufficient number to endanger her life. Dr. Hunkins of Ashland was immediately summoned and she is considered to be in a critical condition.

Miss Sturtevant is one of four children, three sisters and one brother, in addition to her mother and father, forming the family.

BOSTON LETTER

Boston, Oct. 27.—The commission recently appointed by Governor McCall to conduct the election among the Massachusetts soldiers on the Mexican border decided to take with them to Texas four election officers and operate the ballot boxes. There will be six polling places established by the board at various places along the border, unless the 8th and 9th regiments are returned to their homes before November 7. Information from the front on this is so far as officers stationed there are concerned, considerably confused, but those in authority have announced their belief that neither of the regiments will be away from El Paso on election day. There will remain three Massachusetts companies on the border, according to General Funston, if the infantry regiments are sent home. One of these is at Fort Bliss, four miles from El Paso, and another is at Camp Stewart, several miles beyond, but in the same direction from the city. The third will be at Camp Cotton on the eastern side of El Paso. The paraphernalia for conducting the election has already been sent to El Paso by express and the commission will leave at 10:30 a. m. on Monday.

Members of the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange have gone on record as being opposed to the proposed state building law, which, among other things, provides for the appointment of a state building commissioner who shall have arbitrary powers in the enforcement of the law and its many sided regulations. The proposed law is in the form of a recommendation made to the legislature by a recess committee. The legislature will vote on the measure the coming winter, and adding the Massachusetts Real Estate Exchange in its fight against the bill will be the Mayors' club, which has gone on record against the proposed law.

The state will have nothing to do with the English sparrow exterminating crusade and its citizens will be discouraged from discriminating in it to the extent provided in protective statutes. This is the statement of officials of the Fish and Game commission. There are many reasons, it was said, why no such movement should gain headway in this state. One is that such a campaign would be as destructive to other birds as to the sparrows. Many of the state's insectivorous birds and some of the songsters bear so close a resemblance to the English sparrow that no ordinary hunter could distinguish between them. Practically all of the females, with the exception of the male "yellow bird," are in this class. The female bobolink is another and the common ground sparrow of the Massachusetts meadows is another. Those versed in birdlore it is admitted would have no difficulty in distinguishing any of these, but the sort of a hunter who enlists in campaign of indiscriminate slaughter is not apt to be a passionate ornithologist.

The Massachusetts Horticultural Society, the oldest and most influential organization of its kind in the U. S., is planning for an autumn exhibition of plants, flowers, fruits and vegetables, next Wednesday to Sunday, that in all probability will surpass any previous effort of the society along this line. The society has spent thousands of dollars annually in cultivating rare and beautiful plants and flowers and has sent representatives into the most isolated places in the world for specimens that have been taken up the world over. Many of these newer specimens will be seen at the coming show. The prize list amounts to $2500, many of the first awards to be $100, and the seconds $50.

ORDER BANNER
"FOR SHERMAN"Milford Democrats Slightly
Mixed on Vice Presidential Candidates.

Milford, Oct. 27.—If Thomas H. Marshall of Indiana should happen to stop in Milford today he would probably remark "sic transit gloria." That is, if he finds any glory in being vice president.

A short time ago Mr. Marshall lectured in Milford, and it was reasonable to suppose that his identity and office were well impressed on all the minds. Yet when the local Democratic committee ordered a banner painted this morning with the names of their party's candidates, to be hung with a new campaign flag, they directed the painter to make it "Wilson and Sherman."

It was a hurry job for the Democratic flag has been delayed in getting here, and the Republican flag has been flying for ten days. William H. Peckard was instructed to do the lettering and do it quick.

"When he had finished the job it did not look right. Yet he had followed copy."

"That's right," they told him, "Wilson and Sherman, and hurry it up."

"It's all done," said the painter, "but somebody just told me it should be Wilson and Marshall."

The committee man said something which caused the telephone operator to blush.

Now the banner is being repainted and the flag raising has been postponed for a day.

PEOPLES' OPINIONS.

Thinks We Can Do Better.

Editor—According to the records of the city council meeting on Thursday evening we are to spend considerable money for horses in the fire department and the progressive members of the council who have for some time favored more motorized fire fighting equipment must realize that any agitation with that end in view is nothing more than a waste of time. We hear that the city is not financially situated to purchase any more motorized apparatus. However, it seems that something could be done in that way if the council went at it right. Why not sell Engine 3 and with the money realized, added to the $1000 appropriated and the amount taken in from the sale of four horses, buy more motorized equipment. These amounts would go quite a way in such a deal. We have got to come to it sooner or later and the people of Portsmouth must know that such equipment will have thousands of dollars in the fire department and that motorized apparatus will pay for itself in a very short time.

TAX PAYER.

Playing the Game.

Mr. Editor—In your account of the proceedings of the city meeting, I read the mayor's communication regarding the board of public works and their alleged over-expenditure of their appropriation. To a disinterested party this action on the part of the mayor savors very much of the cheap political game. It is a well known fact that in many instances various departments of the city have overdrawn the amount allotted them and an amount to make up the deficiency has been taken from some other department and there has been no bullahloo made about it and there probably would not have been this time, only for the fact that the municipal election is not far distant.

Playground Flag.

Editor—The playground flag, evidently has seen its best days and there is hardly enough of it left to be seen, still it is hoisted at the masthead every day. The caretaker has got the courage and no doubt will continue to display Old Glory as long as there is a strip of the red, white and blue.

That Jewish Wilson Club.

Editor—An item that appeared in local paper regarding the formation of a Jewish Wilson Club is very misleading. At a recent meeting of local Hebrews, an out of town speaker attempted to inject some of the Wilson brand of politics into it, but he was promptly rebuffed by Mr. Harry Sussman and others, who told this young man some facts as to what the Republican party had done for their race. The majority of the Jewish population are Republicans and intend to still cling to that faith.

RETREATING ROUMANIANS DESTROYED LONG BRIDGE

Twelve-Mile Bridge Across the Danube Leading into Cernavoda Was Blown up Before the Teuton Advance

London, Oct. 26.—Roumanian troops blew up the Cernavoda bridge, the greatest in Europe, following the evacuation of the city, said a Rome wireless today, quoting a Bucharest dispatch.

The Cernavoda bridge was built in 1886 at a cost of several million dollars and is the only bridge across the Danube north of which rest on Roumanian soil. It spans the Danube and adjacent marshes and is 14 miles long. The Constantza-Bucharest railway crossed this structure.

French Within 500 Yards of Fort Vaux.

Paris, Oct. 26.—The French troops at Verdun are following up as fast as they can the advantage gained by their sudden forward sweep on Tuesday and, according to the latest information, have closed in to within less than five hundred yards of Vaux fort. Announcement of the capture is momentarily expected here. It will completely restore the French line held Feb. 25. The German forces at Verdun are reacting so slowly and with such apparent lack of strength that, in the opinion of French military men, they no longer possess a general reserve, but are obliged to withdraw men from one section of the front to re-enforce another section in case of need.

Reports of the casualties which are now in hand show the French losses were light, considerably less than the number of prisoners taken, and a large proportion of them were of cases in which the men were slightly wounded.

Considerable material was captured. The Germans had massed guns of all calibres in the Ravine of Death, all of which fell into the hands of the French.

The three lieutenant-generals, who under the command of Gen. Mangin, led the attacking divisions, were all lieutenant-colonels at the outbreak of the war, and had been singled out by Gen. Joffre for promotion on account of their technical ability, energy and initiative.

Roumanians Capture Mt. Kerkhara. Bucharest, Oct. 26.—The capture by the Roumanians of Mt. Kerkhara, on the Transylvanian front, is unannounced by the war office. In the Oltuz valley fighting continues beyond the Roumanian frontier. The Austro-German forces have now been driven everywhere beyond the western frontier of Moldavia, the northern province of Roumania, the statement says.

Paris, Oct. 26.—Serbian and French troops scored several victories in the fighting near Monastir. It was officially announced today. The Serbs captured a height along the Cerna river and the French cavalry occupied the bridges at Zverada and the villages of Coldborda and Lalsica, southwest of Lake Presba.

London, Oct. 26.—Attacks on the Constantinople Salonika railroad by British naval aeroplanes have inflicted considerable damage, the admiralty announced today. One machine failed to return.

Berlin, Oct. 26.—Advancing in a wide semi-circle, Mackensen is sweeping forward in Dobrudja in an effort to pin the defeated Russian and Roumanian armies against the Danube and complete their destruction.

Only a few Roumanian detachments official advice indicate, retreated across the river before the Cernavoda bridge fell into Mackensen's hands. The main body of enemy troops fell back to the northward, keeping in touch with the troops that evacuated Constantza, the only course possible to prevent the Constantza force from being surrounded and captured.

Though the Roumanians are retreating rapidly in Dobrudja, they are still offering stubborn resistance to Falkenhayn's advance over the Transylvanian frontier.

"By the capture of Cernavoda, Field Marshal Mackensen's army completely turned the military situation in Dobrudja in our favor," the military critic of the semi-official news agency asserted today.

"Today the railroad line from Constantza to Cernavoda is completely in our hands, and with the rich booty in locomotives and railway cars, forms a first-class base for strategic operations. The flying Russians and Roumanians abandoned all this material. They retreated into two parts, those who did not remain on the battlefield or were not captured saved themselves by flight over the Danube bridge at Cernavoda or to northern Dobrudja.

"After the capture of Cernavoda, this famous Danube bridge, the largest in Europe, was dominated by Mackensen's cannon.

"After the fall of the Constantza-Cernavoda line, the transportation of provisions from Russia must now be conducted on two minor and less efficient railroad lines in the Moldavia or Danube or by the ports of Galatz and Braila, which cannot be compared with Constantza.

"At the same time, the railroad from Constantza to Bucharest, the Roumanians' most important artillery transportation route, is practically eliminated. All goods must go via Braila and Ploesti.

"Roumanian military situation during the last two days has become much more critical, especially since the Germans and Austro-Hungarians have already partly conquered the Carpathian passes."

Denies State's Motion

Concord, Oct. 27.—Another step has been taken in the litigation caused by the purchase of Crawford Notch by the State of New Hampshire in 1913. The Forest Products Company, claiming title to certain land in the Notch, did not participate in the award of damages caused by the state and subsequently was given leave to intervene in the legal proceedings. The state asked that the order for such intervention be vacated.

Judge Oliver W. Branch of the superior court has now denied this motion and the matter probably will be taken to the supreme court.

QUIZ CHOCOLATE CHILD SLAYER ON WAKELIN CASE

MELROSE POLICE CHIEF GOES TO SPRINGFIELD AFTER MURDER CLUE.

Hoston, Oct. 26.—The tragedy in the death of Loretta Wakelin, 6-year-old Melrose girl, whose mutilated body was found on the slopes of the wooded hill near her home on the afternoon of June 1, was resurrected today when Chief George Kerr of the Melrose police went to Springfield to question Francis Ducharme, confessed murderer of 3-year-old Leona Kaczar of Chicago, and who, it is believed by the police, knows something about the mutilation and death of 6-year-old Lillian Hegley in Holyoke, Sept. 19, 1915.

Just what the chief expects to learn from Ducharme, now awaiting the action of the grand jury at the Springfield jail is not known. Residents of Melrose have come to think the murder would be placed in the list of unsolved mysteries.

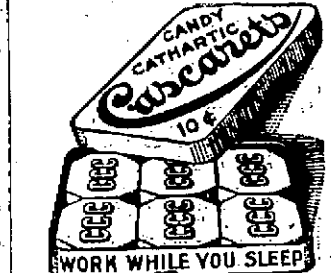

Ducharme was a wanderer. He had been seen in Easthampton, where he claims his home, during the period about June 1, the time when Loretta Wakelin was strangled to death after having been criminally assaulted. He did arrive in Easthampton on June 6 or 8, and this fact, with the fact that he is believed to have a father living in Salem, was enough to open up an entirely new clue.

Leona Kaczar was assaulted in the same manner as was Loretta Wakelin before she was done to death. The body of Loretta Wakelin was hidden in the underbrush of the lonely hillside within a few hundred yards of her own home. The body of Leona Kaczar was as carefully hidden in the cellar of a deserted building in Chicago, a short distance from her home. Discovery of the bodies was alike in both instances, accidental, during the search for the little girls.

Don't be bilious, constipated, sick, with breath bad and stomach sour.

Tonight's sure "Take Cascaras" and enjoy the nicest, gentlest liver and bowel cleansing you ever experienced. Wake up with your head clear, stomach sweet, breath right and feeling fine. Get rid of sick headache, biliousness, constipation, furred tongue, sour stomach, bad colds. Clear your skin, brighten your eyes, quieten your sleep and feel like doing a full day's work. Cascaras are better than salts, pills or cathartics because they don't shock the liver or gripe the bowels or cause inconvenience all the next day.

Mothers should give cross, sick, bilious, feverish children a whole Cascaras anytime as they can not injure the thirty feet of tender bowels.

ARROSTOOK POTATOES AT NEW HIGH MARK

Danvers, Oct. 26.—Potatoes are today higher in Arrostook county than ever before at this time of the year, the market taking a sudden jump from $3.25, Tuesday's price, to $3.60 and $3.70 a barrel. Potato men say this is unprecedented for this stage of the season. In spite of it, shipments are far from being heavy and there is surprisingly little activity in the market. An unusual fall demand is the cause of the phenomenal rise.

The average price of potatoes in Arrostook at this time of the year is about $2 a barrel. Last year the Jan. 1 price was $2.25 a barrel. A prominent shipper believes that the price will go to $2 a bushel, which means $6 a barrel of potatoes in Arrostook. About 25 per cent of the crop has already been shipped which is more than usual for this time of the year, due to high prices. Coupled with the fact that the crop in Arrostook this year is only about 80 per cent of normal, this points to a continued rise.

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 27.—Members of

HAVE ROSY CHEEKS AND FEEL FRESH AS A DAISY—TRY THIS!

Says glass of hot water with phosphate before breakfast washes out poisons.

To see the tinge of healthy bloom in your face, to see your skin get clearer and clearer, to wake up without a headache, backache, coated tongue or a nasty breath, in fact to feel your best, day in and day out, just try inside-bathing every morning for one week.

Before breakfast each day, drink a glass of real hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it as a harmless means of washing from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels (the previous day's indigestible waste, sour bile and toxins); thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach. The action of hot water and limestone phosphate on an empty stomach is wonderfully invigorating. It cleans out all the sour fermentations, gases and acidity and gives one a splendid appetite for breakfast.

A quarter pound of limestone phosphate will cost very little at the drug store but is sufficient to demonstrate that just as soon and hot water cleanses, sweetens and freshens the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the blood and internal organs. Those who are subject to constipation, biliousness, attacks, acid stomach, rheumatic twinges, also those whose skin is sallow and complexioned, are assured that one week of inside-bathing will have them both looking and feeling better in every way.

G. O. P. TAKES FIGHT RIGHT INTO WASHINGTON

Washington, Oct. 26.—Republican campaign managers will wage their fight here for Charles E. Hughes right at the doors of the government buildings presided over by members of President Wilson's cabinet.

Republican orators, some of them of national prominence, have been selected to address open air rallies outside the buildings at noon each day from now until election day. Government office-holders of Republican faith will be urged to vote in their home states.

Of the forty thousand or more government clerks and officials employed in Washington there is a large percentage of Republicans who have held over under the civil service from Republican administrations. Thousands of them have reserved part of their thirty days' annual leave for the purpose of joining the rush to the voting places on election day.

A large number of Portsmouth people took advantage of the B. & M. excursion rates to Boston yesterday.

AT MEETING HELD AT EXETER.

The Rockingham County Republican Club held an enthusiastic meeting on Thursday afternoon and evening at the Town Hall, Exeter, which was attended by more than 200 members from all parts of the county. Several fine addresses were delivered and after the meeting the members of the club became the guests of the Exeter Republican Club at their quarters.

The meeting was presided over by George W. Lampray, president of the club, who introduced the several speakers. The first speaker was the Hon. Harry W. Keyes, Republican candidate for governor. Mr. Keyes was given a hearty ovation on his introduction and was applauded several times during his speech. Congressman Cyrus A. Sulloway, candidate for reelection to Congress from this district, was the second speaker. He spoke of the national and international situation which the country is facing at the present time and urged the election of all Republican candidates, both state and national.

The third speaker was the Hon. John H. Bartlett of this city, candidate for the House of Representatives in the state legislature. Steward E. Rowe of Exeter, candidate for county treasurer, also addressed the meeting.

Despite the fact that the state and national campaigns are not yet out of the way, some of the city officials are starting to play a little in the political game.

Give our careful work in this line a fair trial. We get all orders out promptly.

HUGHES WARNS MUNITION WORKERS OF "NEW EUROPE"

TELLS AUDIENCE AT HARTFORD
WE MUST PREPARE TO MEET
AFTER WAR COMPETITION

Hartford, Ct., Oct. 26.—Charles E. Hughes went into what he termed "The homestead of the campaign" with the opening speech here today of his last trip before election day. The nominee in a theatre spoke before an audience composed partly of workers in munitions plants nearby.

"This is no time for complacency," he said. "This is no time for political talk about prosperity. It is a time for thought. When the men now in the trenches of Europe are withdrawn to follow the pursuits of peace, the abnormal stimulus of the war will be withdrawn and the men in this country now engaged in satisfying the demands of Europe at war will no longer have that demand to satisfy.

"It's a new Europe we'll have to meet, a disciplined, organized Europe, and we should meet it with a new United States. And you can no more run this country in the coming years on the tariff principle of our opponents than you can fly to the moon."

Mr. Hughes also referred to the Adamson bill.

"I depreciate every effort to arouse class antagonism in this country," he said. "There is no hope for an American embittered by class antagonism. You can engulf us in the most serious social disturbances that way. It takes no wit to develop a feeling of bitterness. It only requires thoughtless thought and the application of force instead of following the rule of reason."

The nominee declared that co-operation also was necessary between capital and labor for industrial stability.

"There are no lies of safety in American life," he said in asserting that the time had passed when men could "build little citadels along the highways of commerce."

Mr. Hughes spoke also for the maintenance of American rights.

"It is said that a vote for me is a vote for war," he said. "It is said that the alternative of the administration's policy is war. A vote for me is a vote for maintaining our lasting peace and security by our self-respect and the confidence and friendship of all nations."

En route to Hartford Mr. Hughes was greeted by station crowds at New Haven and Meriden. Several hun-

Hundred Yale students cheered him at New Haven. Their spokesman told him that class-room duties had prevented others from being present. To these Mr. Hughes sent the following telegram: "Extend to the men of Yale my best wishes and appreciation of what they are doing in the campaign. The campaign concerns the efforts of young men and there is little hope for the young men of America, unless we have a sound basis for enterprise, and American rights are properly safeguarded. I am glad to hear of the organization of the Hughes club of Yale. I could talk an hour on the subject of college men in their relations to politics today."

Mrs. Hughes left the party at Hartford for Wellesley, to spend the afternoon with her daughter, Miss Catherine, who is a freshman at Wellesley College.

INCREASE IN COMPETITIVE IMPORTS

(By William R. Wilcox, Chairman Republican National Committee.)

Our imports for the seven months of this year ended July have increased nearly 60 per cent over the preceding four years' average and fully 60 per cent over 1911. An analysis of these greatly increased imports shows that the increase of manufactures for the seven months alluded to, to this year, over last year, amounted to $136,000,000. The increase in foodstuffs amounted to over $50,000,000, while the increase in raw material, so called, for use in manufacturing, amounted to over $250,000,000. While there are many luxuries and native products included in these large imports, yet it is a fact which cannot be questioned that we are importing, these days, under our near-free-trade tariff, an immense amount of competitive products from all parts of the earth which are displacing our own products of a similar nature. We are importing ore and coal; we are importing wool and cotton; we are importing rice and peanuts and we are also importing iron and steel manufactures, furniture and clothing, all kinds of building material and products without number, which we can or should make or produce at home, giving employment to our own well-paid labor instead of letting the Japanese and Chinese and inhabitants of the islands of the sea do our work for us at a most pitiable wage as compared with our own high standard.

It may be said of our imports from Canada which increased from $160,000,000 in 1914 and the same amount in 1915, to $201,000,000 in 1916 and we are competing with labor much on a level with our own, and that American wits are being whetted by contest with wits of others, as was the wish of our President. But this cannot be said of the rest of our imports. It is by no means a fair competition for the American miner, the American forester, the American mechanic and the American farmer to have to compete with laborers who do not get one tenth the wages that are being paid here in this country. And yet we are freely allowing the competitive products of all parts of the earth to come into our markets in free competition with our own products of the farm and factory.

If I were to use the methods of our Secretary of the Treasury or the Comptroller of the Currency, I might call attention, for instance to our increase of imports from Abyssinia. This increase in 1915, as compared with 1914, was over 400 per cent, and while this is to be sure, an exceptionally large increase, yet it illustrates what is being done under our present low tariff.

The fact of the matter is that foreign countries, even to the furthestmost part of the earth, are getting a substantial hold in our markets which they have never enjoyed before, and this hold will be strengthened as long as their products can come in here free of duty or only slightly taxed. So long as our mills and our workmen and our farmers can be profitably engaged in producing munitions for the countries at war we must not fear this increased invasion of competitive goods from all parts of the earth, but just as soon as the war is over we must turn from munitions to products for home consumption and normal exports, then we shall find that our markets are filled with the products of laborers and farmers who are paid wages that our laborers and farmers would not enjoy. We must then be more or less idle or make an attempt to reduce wages to the foreign level. Buying and selling goods never was and never will be a matter of reciprocity. We buy from other countries what we want and they buy from us only what they want. The old Democratic free trade doctrine that, "Unless we buy we cannot sell" has been so thoroughly exploded that it need no longer be considered.

The American importer is awake to the situation and is going to buy and handle goods upon which he can make the greatest profit, regardless of whether or not it may require the American workman in the end. But the trouble is that as the duty is taken off, the profit is added and the consumer in this country gets little or no advantage. Therefore, he is not benefited in any way whatever, but only injured by a large importation of wares. Ultimately, our own market for our own products is destroyed, and this means idle mills and idle men. This was thoroughly demonstrated during the first ten months under the operation of the present tariff law, before the war broke out and for a time checked our importations from the belligerent countries. But the fact of the matter is that Great Britain and France and even Belgium are again selling us about as much as ever, and only two or three countries are prevented from doing so. When the more than ten million men now under arms return to their homes and take up again the production of all kinds of fabrics and wares, then we shall be hit in every possible way. The lesson that we are learning is a costly one, but the experience will be valuable if we use it aright and return to protection at the first opportunity. The only way to do this will be to elect Hughes and Fairbanks and with them a protectionist senate and house of representatives when the opportunity comes on the seventh of next November.

BOSTON & MAINE.

Boston—Boston & Maine Railroad and Intercontinental Rubber Co. have filed motions in United States District Court asking that petition of Charles M. Green of Newton, a stockholder in the road, to intervene in the receivership proceedings be dismissed. They say that Green has not stated a case which entitles him to intervene and that the proper procedure is an order of the court which entitles parties interested to appear and show cause why the receivership should not be made permanent and at which time stockholders would be allowed to appear and be heard.

Boston—Judge Morton in United States District Court will hear all creditors of Boston & Maine Railroad and parties of interest in the receivership proceedings, Nov. 6 at 10:30 on question of making temporary receiver permanent. This action was taken on motion of Intercontinental Rubber Co.

SAYS BOYS HAD BIG HAND IN RIOT AT HAVERHILL

DECLARES THEY TOOK COMRADE
AWAY FROM POLICEMAN — POLICE RETREATED TO STATION HOUSE.

Lawrence, Oct. 26.—Boys figured prominently in the mob which rioted near the Haverhill City Hall on the night of April 3, according to the testimony of Justin Bridgeham, a police officer, at the trial today of Mayor Albert L. Bartlett and four members of the Haverhill city government. The defendants are charged with failure to suppress the riot which followed an attempt by Thomas E. Leyden to deliver a lecture on anti-Catholic subjects.

Bridgeham testified that when he ran from the police station he saw a crowd of boys throwing stones. Bridgeham grabbed one boy and, as he was not in uniform, turned him over to a uniformed officer. A large crowd gathered and pulled the boy from the officer's grasp. Because of the hostile attitude of the mob, he said, the officers retreated to the station house. Bridgeham said there were few adults in the crowd.

Harry Reed, a Haverhill harness maker, was on the stand again today. He admitted he did not feel favorable to Mayor Bartlett, because of the latter's refusal to allow Leyden to use the City Hall. Reed said he never met Leyden until the Sunday meeting, but said he was interested in the propaganda.

Another police officer, Thomas Colby testified that he heard Mayor Bartlett order the crowd about City Hall to disperse, saying it was an unlawful gathering. Charles H. Hoyt, commissioner of public safety, who is one of the defendants, also made efforts to have the crowd break up, the witness said, but without success.

City Marshall Mack, according to Officer Colby, told the police that "the situation is a delicate one. We must handle it diplomatically. Make arrests only when necessary."

MEAT INJURIOUS TO THE KIDNEYS

Take a tablespoonful of Salts
if Back hurts or Bladder bothers.

We are a nation of meat eaters and our blood is filled with uric acid, says a well-known authority, who warns us to be constantly on guard against kidney trouble.

The kidneys do their utmost to free the blood of this irritating acid, but become weak from the overwork; they get sluggish; the eliminative tissues clog and thus the waste is retained in the blood to poison the entire system.

When your kidneys ache and feel like pains of lead, and you have stinging pains in the back or the urine is irritating, obliging you to seek relief during the night; when you have severe headaches, nervous and dizzy spells, sleeplessness, acid stomach or rheumatism in bad weather, get from your pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate clogged kidneys, to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus ending urinary and bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink, and nobody can make a mistake by taking a little occasionally to keep the kidneys clean and active.

COLONIAL THEATRE.

There is considerable satisfaction in knowing when you go out for an afternoon or evening entertainment that you are going to get the best there is for your money. Which is the same thing as saying you will go to the Colonial. This week's novel music and picture combination has proven one of the most popular amusement features ever exhibited in Portsmouth, and that is saying a mouthful.

The fine orchestra, which in itself is a big attraction, added to the numerous reels of the best screen dramas and comedies makes an entertainment any theatre might well be proud of.

However, that is the Colonial idea. A little more and a little better than the rest.

Today and tomorrow, the world's most popular player, Francis X. Bushman, with clever and beautiful Beverly Bayne, will be one of the many drawing cards. They will be seen in "Pennington's Choice," a five part drama of vital interest to every one.

It is enough to say that "Pennington's Choice" is crammed to overflowing with soul gripping action. There will also be a five part Mutual masterpiece, comedies, news serials, etc.

SECRETARY OF WAR BAKER MAKES DENIALThat Americans Are Implicated in Alleged Plot to Embarrass Wilson Administration.

(Special to The Herald)

Washington, Oct. 27.—Complete denial that any Americans are implicated in the alleged plot to embarrass the Wilson administration being engineered in American towns and towns across the Mexican border were made today by Secretary of War Baker. He declared emphatically that no political expediences in making public his charges were intended by him. On the contrary, he said, the action is taken to show to this country that an effort is being made to complicate the affairs of Mexico.

At the same time Secretary of State Lansing announced that the statement of Secretary Baker last night was made at his (Lansing's) suggestion after all the facts in the case as developed by the department of justice, had been learned by him and Secretary Baker. It is announced that the state, war, and justice departments will co-operate in the investigation, which is now well under way, and that arrests of persons implicated in the alleged plot may be made shortly.

Secretary Lansing said that these alleged plots are believed to be the work of the legislative party, the followers of Felix Diaz. Secretary Baker asked if the punitive expedition of General Pershing had been changed in its purpose, said, "It has not."
